

---

The Laennec Times

Valuable reporters, valuable news, valuable readers.

---

Monday, November 12, 2018

---

ARMISTICE CENTENARY

LOCAL NEWS

When German girls came to stay in Pont L'Abbé in October (which was part of the exchange programme with the German classes of Mr Le Loch), it was the occasion for students to gather and work on clichés. This is an example of what people have in mind when they talk about the other nations.

New headmistress in Laënnec High School by Z. Maréchal, M. Marques and A. Pichard.

We have met the new headmistress. Her name is Mrs Lamy. She worked for 15 years in Middle Schools and High Schools as a mathematics teacher near Dijon and Lyon. Then, she decided to take the "concours des personnels de direction".

She wanted to work in Finistère because she likes Brittany and its landscapes. Before working at Laënnec High School, Mrs Lamy worked in multipurpose High School in Landerneau. She really likes her job even if she has a lot of work.

We talked of the new Baccalauréat and she asked what we thought about this one. She said that this reform is a possibility to choose a real individual course.

We also spoke about the canteen, and we agree to say that the food is good but she doesn't often lunch there.

She comes from Massif Central. She doesn't have any children or pets. She likes reading, going to the cinema, walking and skiing very much."

---

ENVIRONMENT

The long swim by N. Blot Sapiens and P. Kervennal

The british man Lewis Pugh is a well- known endurance swimmer. This summer, he completed his challenge to swim the length of the English Channel in support of cleaning up the oceans. People think he's an amazing swimmer and a modern day hero. In fact, his motto is "achieving the impossible". The reason why he did that is because he wanted people to become aware of the pollution in all the oceans around the world. By swimming long distances, he denounces the fact that our oceans are overfished and because of that they are in jeopardy. Lewis Pugh is a very dedicated man in the protection of our environment and particularly our oceans. That's why Lewis wants to show his idea at G7 summit so that all nations may take a step. Then, this global coalition will purge plastic in oceans. Moreover, we need also to stop exploitation of our seas and allow nature to recover.

---

CINEMA by M. Fuerst

Aquaman Release Date: December 21, 2018

The film "Aquaman" is not just about super heroes. It also deals with ecological issues and people's concerns. Thus, in reaction to the exploitation of the seas, the ocean fights back. Here Aquaman's half-brother King Orm is about to declare war upon the surface world. Tsunamis and inundations are about to destroy the planet and humanity. Aquaman represents any human being who, by his actions, can make a difference to save the oceans from human pollution. What is important is not the quality of the film, it is the fact that people are becoming aware something is going wrong on our planet and we need to react.

---

OPINION : why do we constantly need superheroes ? By I. Postic and A. Evain-Maviel

Superheroes are powerful characters that people like because they all need role models. They are really important as they allow children to learn how to make the difference between heroes and villains. They also reassure them since they fight for good causes and make people aware of important topics like the environnement. (see Aquaman)

---

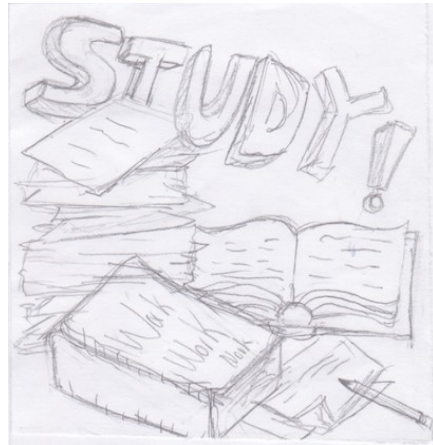

---

---

---

cartoon of the month

by M. Madec, N. Sancho, T. Le Maout and M. Olivier

We need teachers to grow.

Laennec Toughie N°1 by A. Coïc

Across

- 3. déformer
- 8. sous-titre
- 9. bruyant
- 11. lecteur

Down

- 1. publier
- 2. vérité
- 4. influent
- 5. bavard
- 6. quotidien
- 7. hebdomadaire
- 10. gros titre

